While Morred sought to free his people from these spells and to confront his enemy, Elfarran and waft them over the sea in a magic boat flying before the magewind. But when he told her they'd his forest, had spoken of destruction, of transgression, of all things changed. Now it was upon slowly, and went into his house. He resolved to wait and watch. Being a patient man with a strong will, he did so for four years, till Diamond was sixteen. A big, well-grown youth, good at games and lessons, he was 'still ruddy-faced and bright-eyed and cheerful. He had taken it hard when his voice changed, the sweet treble going all untuned and hoarse. Golden had hoped that that was the end of his singing, but the boy went on wandering about with itinerant musicians, ballad-singers and such, learning all their trash. That was no life for a merchant's son who was to inherit and manage his father's properties and mills and business, and Golden told him so. "Singing time is over, son," he said. "Dirt's easier to keep clean," he said, knowing the struggle already lost. It was true that all you had to do with a good hard-packed clay floor was sweep it and now and then sprinkle it to keep the dust down. But it sounded silly all the same. There was an uncomfortable silence, as the Doorkeeper did not speak. At last a slight, bright-eyed. most of the work. The ewe bore the digging knife patiently, her opaque, amber, slotted eyes gazing. A century and a half after Morred's death, King Akambar, a prince of Shelieth on Way, moved the court to Havnor and made Havnor Great Port the capital of the kingdom. More central than Enlad, Havnor was better placed for trade and for sending out fleets to protect the Hardic islands against Kargish raids and forays. "And the wizard in South Port didn't teach you how to make it work?" of his art. He found out what he could. Then the boy was no good for anything and had to be. I sat down. My fingers were unsteady; I wanted to hold something in them. I pulled a. everything. . ". "Asleep." Azver nodded towards where she lay, curled up in the grass above the little falls. "I've often wondered why I let the boy in," said the Doorkeeper. "Now I begin to understand. ". "I told them," he said, "that if they went out Medra's Gate this day, they'd never go back through. He got up in the icy morning while they still slept rolled in their blankets. He knew where the cattle were nearby, and went to them. The sickness was very familiar to him now. He felt it in his hands as a burning, and a queasiness if it was much advanced. Approaching one steer that was lying down, he found himself dizzy and retching. The island was drowned beneath the sea, and Elfarran with it..He came back in the evening, lamer than ever, for of course San had walked him clear out into the Long Fields where most of his beeves were. Nobody had horses but Alder, and they were for his cowboys. She gave her guest a basin of hot water and a clean towel for his poor feet, and then thought to ask him if he might want a bath, which he did. They heated the water and filled the old tub, and she went into her room while he had his bath on the hearth. When she came out it was all cleared away and wiped up, the towels hung before the fire. She'd never known a man to look after things like that, and who would have expected it of a rich man? Wouldn't he have servants, where he came from? But he was no more trouble than the cat. He washed his own clothes, even his bedsheets, had it done and hung out one sunny day before she knew what he was doing. "You needn't do that, sir, I'll do your things with mine," she said..He looked from one sister to the other: the one so mild and so immovable, the other, under her sternness, quick and tender as the first flame of a catching fire..She closed her eyes in bliss and listened..witches a year's earnings for the promise of a healthy boy, and a rich man touch his gold-.One morning one of Alder's cowboys turned up in the front yard riding a horse and leading a.The curer said nothing to the cowboy but went straight to the mule, or hinny, rather, being out of.She looked up at him, her sharp, strong face softened by the shadowy lantern-light.
